

serious eats

Drinks

Ask a Bartender: Are There Cocktail Trends You Hate?

-Carey Jones | January 30, 2013

Just as with fashion or music, trends come and go in the drinking world. Some, most of us would agree, are for the better—greater attention to cocktail programs at restaurants, an increasing number of small-batch producers—but others, we could do without.

Cocktails on tap, alcoholic foams, beer cocktails, Fernet: just a few of the trends some of our bartenders would do away with. Check out the slideshow to see what fads they wish would just pass already.

Foams

"I am just glad to see foams are going away and also molecular mixology. I would prefer to drink my booze without gelatin." —

Jeremy Straw

